

Summary of Responses

1. What is the first word or phrase that comes to mind when you think of the Tsawout community today?

Many respondents highlighted the reserve's natural beauty – the lands, beach and waterfront – as the first thing that comes to mind when they think of Tsawout. Other respondents commonly described the Tsawout Nation as an 'emerging' place or as having potential to become a better place to live. On the other hand, several respondents described the community as lacking respect and trust for one another. Many feel that the community is divided and vulnerable because of this.

2. What three things make Tsawout a good place to live?

People feel that the reserve's location by the beach and waterfront are its strongest assets. Family, home, and the language/culture were also frequently listed as things that make Tsawout a good place to live.

3. What three things would make Tsawout a better place to live?

The most frequently expressed desire is for improved health in the community, in particular the elimination of drug and alcohol abuse, especially by youth. Increased housing, employment and use or knowledge of the SENCOTEN language was also repeatedly addressed. Other common responses included:

- Greater availability of recreational services and programs for youth and elders;
- A greater sense of pride in the community or better care of the land and homes; and
- Greater availability of land to address overcrowding issues.

4. What are our most treasured cultural traditions, values and principles that we want to preserve and practice into the future?

Almost everyone identified the SENCOTEN language as the most treasured cultural tradition, along with the longhouse and the continual teachings of hunting, fishing, and use of traditional plants and medicines. Respect for elders is also highly valued.

5. What do we want our community to be remembered for by generations to come?

The survey showed that people would like their community to be remembered as a clean, healthy, and a united community where people respect one another and work together. They expressed that they would like to become a First Nation band that other bands could admire and where the SENCOTEN culture flourished.

6. Overall, how would you rate the quality of life at Tsawout?

Very good		4	5%
Good		22	28%
Poor		29	36%
Very poor		24	30%
Don't know		1	1%
Total		80	100%

Over two thirds of the survey respondents rated the overall quality of life in Tsawout as either 'Poor' or 'Very Poor.' Just under one third of the people viewed quality of life as 'Good.' Only 5% of the respondents viewed quality of life as 'Very Good.'

7. Please provide reasons why you selected this rating.

The majority of the survey respondents feel that the poor quality of life is attributed to substance abuse and the general lack of cleanliness around the homes. They do not feel that their children are safe in the community. Poverty and unemployment also contributed to the poor rating. Some respondents feel that they do not have enough assistance or communication from the band nor the government and an improvement in governance and transparency is necessary.

The aspects that make the quality of life good include people's access to the beautiful environment, Tsawout's land and water and support from family.
